

Kimberly Cauvel

Bellingham, WA 98226

 bykimberlycauvel  @kimberlycauvel  @Kimberly_SVH  @kimberlycauvel

Experience

Skagit Valley Herald (Goskagit.com) | Mount Vernon, Wash.

Environment reporter – Since July 2013

As the first environment reporter for the daily newspaper serving Skagit County, Wash., I report on a wide variety of topics including natural resources issues, science and research. In addition to my primary beat, I cover east county communities and do occasional features. I produce live content for print and web, post regularly to social media, and collaborate closely with newsroom photographers and editors. I also occasionally create video clips and charts to help illustrate stories.

Awards and Affiliations

C.B. Blethen Memorial Awards Contest | Pacific Northwest Newspaper Association
Dolly Connelly Award for Excellence in Environmental Journalism – 2018/2019

C.B. Blethen Memorial Awards Contest | Pacific Northwest Newspaper Association
Debbie Lowman Award for Distinguished Reporting of Consumer Affairs – 2017/2018

Metcalf Institute for Marine & Environmental Reporting | University of Rhode Island
Alumni, Annual Science Immersion Workshop for Journalists fellow – June 2017

I was one of 10 journalists selected from around the world for this science and environmental journalism fellowship in 2017.

Memberships

Society of Environmental Journalists – Since 2016

International Association of Professional Writers and Editors – Joined in 2018

Northwest Science Writers Association – Joined in 2019

Education

Western Washington University | Bellingham, Wash.

Bachelor of Arts in environmental studies and journalism – August 2011

While earning my degree I wrote for four campus publications and one community publication. I interned with the regional magazine Bellingham Alive! and was published by the nonprofit InvestigateWest. I graduated cum laude.